[Webinar] Young Scientist Symposium 2020

Host: Young Scientist Symposium 2020 Committee

The annual Young Scientist Symposium aims to bring together all research disciplines of the Institute of Science and Technology (IST) Austria on one dedicated topic. This year's topic is Climate Change. Come listen to leading researchers across multiple disciplines talk about how the future effects of climate change are modelled and predicted. Also, hear about the latest scientific approaches being developed to help us live more sustainably, and tackle the challenges of our changing climate. For more information and to register to attend this webinar, please refer to the Symposium website.
